Alpha Phi Omega and Sigma Phi Rho:

Fraternities meet on common ground

By Lilyanne McClean
Correspondent

Jonathan Benjamin, president of Alpha Phi Omega, and James R. Rhoche II, president of Sigma Phi Rho, have committed themselves and their fraternities to bettering the relationship between black and white organizations at MSC through community service activities.

According to the two presidents, the two fraternities will hold the first Annual Services bowl on Oct. 16. This is football game which will provide an opportunity for the members of both fraternities to get to know each other. Following the football game is a semester full of community service activities which will be done together.

"I feel an attempt should be made to join the black and white fraternities on campus," Benjamin said. "Right now, there is no togetherness. It is as if there is a wall between the two and I want to bring it down. We are both service fraternities and we have the same morals."

Rhoche also believes a change is necessary. "After Jon brought it to my attention, I realized that there should be more interaction," he said. "By Sigma Phi Rho and Alpha Phi Omega doing community activities together, it can show the other Greeks and the rest of the students that black and white fraternities can work together."

On Nov. 7, students should begin to see flyers for a food drive which the fraternities will sponsor. Collection of food will begin Nov. 14., the two presidents said.

"We will be accepting all canned and non-perishable goods," Rhoche said. Collections will continue until Nov. 22. At that time, the food will be donated to a charity organization. This organization has not been chosen to date, Rhoche continued.

"This is just the beginning," Benjamin said. "We would like this relationship between the two groups to continue after James and I have graduated."

Medina contends:

Latin American philosophy exists

By Julia DiMartino
Correspondent

Dr. Vicente Medina spoke about the existence of an "analytic Latin American philosophy of liberation" during a lecture given on Oct. 5 in Kops Lounge.

Medina began by introducing three questions addressed towards Latin American Philosophy.

The first question regarded the presence of Latin American philosophy. This philosophy's presence has been challenged, according to Dr. Medina. One reason for this conflict, he said, is that the philosophy lacks unique discoveries and realizations.

This stems from the fact that Latin American culture lacks its own characteristics. Latin America has been influenced by so many other countries, cultures and languages, that its people find it difficult to latch onto their own fashion of thought, he said.

This, in turn, leads them to copy European philosophy, Medina said.

The second question Medina asked was, "Can Latin American philosophy be particular?" This manner of philosophical thought concentrates on the meaning of the region's economical and political oppression rather than the universal. It considers questions of honesty, truth, and justice.

He stated that Latin American philosophy must also consider universal philosophy to flourish and become recognized.

Medina concluded with the question, "Can there be an analytic Latin American philosophy of liberation?" He answered this question positively.

This type of philosophy presents arguments and backs them with reason. According to Medina, the region's philosophy could benefit from this manner of rationalization.

Medina reiterated the definite presence of Latin American Philosophy. The magnitude of controversy surrounding it proves this, he said.

The obstacles faced by handicapped on campus

By Virginia Delgado
Correspondent

Dr. Morris McGee is an English professor here at MSC. He is handicapped and uses a wheelchair. Throughout his 30 years at this college, he has seen and experienced many of the difficulties caused by inadequate campus facilities.

When McGee first arrived at the college, he said, the situation of the handicapped was grave. He explained that there were no elevators in the buildings, handicapped parking was non-existent, and the campus had steps that had to be climbed in order to get around.

Since then, McGee has worked towards making all campus areas and areas beyond campus accessible to the handicapped. He is a member of the handicapped committee which looks into the problems of handicapped students.

He has also helped pass section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973. This law states: "No otherwise qualified handicapped individual in the United States...shall, solely by reason of his handicap, be excluded from the participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any program or activity receiving Federal Financial assistance."

Other problems encountered by the handicapped are the hardware on doors and inadequate bathroom facilities, he said. Many doors are equipped with round handles which are often difficult for certain handicapped individuals to manage.

In addition, toilet cubicles or the stall doors are too small for a handicapped person to enter.

Last summer, during an international table tennis tournament for the handicapped hosted by MSC, Ms. Elaine Dwyre of Career Services witnessed what she described as an upsetting situation.

A handicapped young lady using a wheelchair attempted to use the lavatory facilities only to find that the handicapped bathroom cubicle was not large enough to accommodate a wheelchair. The young lady was forced to use the bathroom with the door opened. Dwyre remarked, "I was embarrassed for Montclair."

In past years, there have been many proposals for altering and improving campus facilities to accommodate the handicapped. Many of these proposals have not been followed up.

Plans to install an elevator in college hall were developed years ago, James Harris, associate dean of students, said.

Campus Police Report

Physics professor harassed

By Rob Tomeo
Staffwriter

On Oct. 4, the office of a physics professor was broken into and toothpaste was smeared on an optical mirror and a physics textbook. The incident is part of an ongoing investigation, as a similar event happened on a previous occasion. The campus police have a suspect.

Sometime between 4:00 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. on Oct. 7, a resident from Blanton Hall reported that his keys had been stolen from the lock of his room after he had unintentionally left them there. His car keys, which were included on the ring with his room keys, were also taken. The matter is under investigation.

On Oct. 8 at 1:45 a.m., the campus police received a call about a disorderly person in Bohn Hall. Some R.A.'s had seen him staggering in a hall, where broken glass from the doors of a fire extinguisher was scattered about.

The person turned violent and loud when accosted by the R.A.'s. The campus police took him to their headquarters and eventually they brought him to the hospital. Although he had denied it, the person tested positive for alcohol and was treated.

The person was arrested for disorderly conduct and illegal consumption of alcohol and other charges are pending.

On Oct. 10 at 10 a.m. it was discovered that someone removed two of the globe lights on Quarry Road. The globe lights are worth about $200 each.

Between 4:00 p.m. on Oct. 7 and 9:00 a.m. on Oct. 8, forced entry was used to get into a desk in one of the offices in the Student Center Annex, and $73 was taken.

At 4:00 p.m. on Oct. 10, a student reported that her sweater was stolen from a Morehead Hall classroom after she left the room for about 10 minutes.

Between 11:00 p.m. on Oct. 7 and 10:00 a.m. on Oct. 8, someone removed the lock on the passenger side of a 1987 Toyota Pick-Up truck parked in lot 21. A stereo, a C.B., and a radar detector were stolen from the truck.

On Oct. 9 at 2:00 a.m., the police received a call from a Bohn Hall resident that a break-in was taking place in a room in the dorm. When investigating the case, the police found no one.

Amnesty

By Laura Lawson
Correspondent

In celebration of its 25th anniversary, Sprague Library is conducting an amnesty program for the month of October, according to Lou Rodriguez, head of circulation.

Anyone with an overdue book or an overdue fine is encouraged to apply in person for amnesty, which will relieve them of their fines, Rodriguez said.

Rodriguez also requested that along with the overdue books, students bring any notices of obligation they may have received from the library to facilitate matters. These notices will also act of receipts for students who require them.

Amnesty does not apply to lost books which the library has to replace or reserved materials, as they are in heavy demand, he continued.

Rodriguez said that the amnesty program, which has been tried several times before on campus, has been somewhat successful. It is beneficial for both the library and the students to have as many books on the shelves as possible.

Handicapped and obstacles

sons in case of fire were proposed long ago and still have not materialized, he continued.

Harris explained planning delays at MSC. He said that the proposals must often go through many different stages before they are approved. The school must first decide if the proposal is indeed a priority.

Then a decision between legality and morality must be made, he said. This is a question of whether a proposal is legally or morally required, Harris continued.

Another obstacle, Harris said, is the financial requirement of the proposal. A proposal such as the College Hall elevator would cost MSC a great deal of money.

Then the proposal must go out for bidding. The final decision is made at the presidential level, he said.

Despite these obstacles, Harris said, changes have been made in every building at MSC to meet the handicapped accessibility requirements.

McGee stressed that the campus community must be aware of the needs of the handicapped so that progress will continue, and in the future all buildings and facilities will be made even more accessible to the handicapped.

African-American lecture series

Black women face hardshipBy Carl Chase
Correspondent

The African-American Lecture Series this week presented Dr. Vivian V. Gordon, professor at the State University of New York with a doctorate in sociology.

She discussed the subject of her new book, Black Women, Feminism and Black Liberation: Which Way? The book is a study of ways to deal with the unique and complex set of difficulties that all African-American women share to varying degrees.

Sexist, racist and economic stereotypes have given rise to much of the hardship within America's population of black women, who have the distinction of having to struggle against a "trilogy of oppression," Gordon explained.

For example, the myth of the "matriarchal" or female-dominated, black American society is not supported by scientific evidence. This and other errors generally result from the use of "a European model for assessing a non-European culture or its integral parts" she said.

Another trend, "the feminization of poverty," is a major issue which "must be considered when one evaluates the impact of other economic, racial or sexual issues." It is not just race-specific, Gordon said, adding that a disproportionate number of blacks live in poverty.

She referred to several young black coeds from various college campuses who had expressed concern about being urged to participate in the feminist movements. Gordon explained that black women occupy a unique position as a group, but that feminist literature often fails to address women's issues in this light.

The gap exists, in part, because "they fail to consider economic issues as compounded by race. For all African-Americans there are social and economic rewards for cultural amnesia; no other group needs to pay such a dear price for upward mobility," she said.

Feminist theology, she said, subscribes to a basic coalition theory. This theory suggests that women, by forming political ties between women, can achieve power to rival men's power. But this model does not consider America's fundamental power structure, she said.

Gordon further observed that African heritage is still evident in family life: the male-dominated family structure is less typical of ancient African civilization than of European/American civilization.

Today this contrast persists particularly in low-income families. Since many black women belong to this group, women's liberation in this sense has been achieved to a degree, she said.

Gordon offered ways to combat sexism and bolster a rich culture at the same time. "We should learn to avoid bringing up sexist sons. Some women tend to be proud that their sons have many girlfriends. These same women complain if they feel they are treated this way," she said.

One student asked, "How would you go about getting justice under Civil Rights laws?"

Gordon replied, "that's another area of urgent concern because when a black woman believes she is unfairly underpaid, she may need to file suit under three different kinds of bias and may be unable to clearly establish whether this discrimination is racial or sexual or, in some cases, age related."

Asked by another student how to form coalitions that can be more practical for black women, Gordon suggested, "issue-specific and time-limited alliances that clearly suit our agenda."

Administration contracts medical group to staff MSC Health CenterBy Virginia Delgado
Correspondent

Beginning October 1, a medical group, hired on a contract basis, will replace Dr. Lillian Rosenberg who is retiring after 31 years as a practicing physician at MSC's Health Center, Dr. Edward Martin, dean of students announced.

Prior to the onset of the fall semester, MSC's Health Center had been left greatly unattended, although in an emergency, campus police and Mountainside Hospital ambulances would be alerted and ready to assist, Martin said.

Martin added that the staff of nurses, according to medical law, is not authorized to give throat cultures or medical injections without the supervision of a physician. This has obviously inconvenienced some students who are in need of these services.

According to Martin, the college now has the opportunity to try new health services that may further develop the health center and provide its students with new and more expansive medical coverage.

The group, part of The Mountainside family practice group, is affiliated with Mountainside Hospital as well as the New Jersey School of Medicine and Dentistry, Martin said. The new program will provide the school with 2 physicians on duty for two hours a day six days a week.

The hours are Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday 10 a.m. to 12 p.m., Thursday and Friday 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday afternoon hours have yet to be announced.

Clove Road stairway delay explainedBy Barbara DiMaria
Correspondent

At last night's meeting, the SGA Welfare and Internal Affairs Committee announced the reason for the delay holding up the construction of a stairway to lot 28 by Clove Road.

According to Thomas Stepnowski, assistant vice president for facilities, the administration in Trenton is currently in the process of reviewing a safety evaluation code for the project. Trenton will make the final decisions.

Once the project goes ahead is given, an engineering company will be hired to carry out the construction. The process of soliciting the bid will take approximately three months, he said.

Stepnowski said that $126,000 has been allotted for the project. The money will be divided between building the stairway at Clove Road, and building steps at the Carlyle Webster Road hill site.

The expected time of completion for both projects is the summer of 89.

Homecoming weekend begins with a bonfire in lot 28 at 8 p.m. on Friday, Oct. 14. Following this event will be hay rides and the announcement of the five finalists for Homecoming king and queen

Float building will start between 10 p.m. and 2 a.m. on Friday. It will resume at 7 a.m. and ends at 11 a.m. on Saturday. The Homecoming parade will begin at 2 p.m.

The Homecoming game against William Paterson College will begin at 8 p.m. with the announcement of the winners of the Homecoming king and queen contest during the half-time. At 9 p.m., fireworks will wind out the celebration of Homecoming week.

Q. Who do you think will make the best vice-president, Dan Quayle or Lloyd Bentsen?

"According to the debate, I can see that Bensten has more knowledge and a better platform than Quayle, and would be better at handling the Office of the President over Quayle."

*Michael Trombly

"I think that Bentsen will make a better V.P., just from seeing him in the debate he had better view points. He has the best experience over Quayle."

*Mike Iasiella

"I feel that Dan Quayle will do a better job. I don't believe any of the accusations that were said about him. I think he came off better in the debate with Lloyd Bentsen and that he is more in touch with the people."

*Michael Guerrieri

"In my opinion Lloyd Bentsen will be a better vice-president because of his experience. I feel that Dan Quayle just doesn't have the political experience for the job."

SOME PEOPLE RETIRE WITH MORE THAN JUST A GOLD WATCH.

You work hard all your life and what do you get?

Well, depending on where you work, you could get cancer. Asbestos has been proven to cause cancer. Certain toxic chemicals like formaldehyde and freon are being investigated. If you've worked with radioactive particles or even worked near them, your risk is greater.

And even if you've worked nowhere hazardous, it wouldn't hurt to get a checkup. Because the incidence of cancer after the age of 45 to 50 increases rapidly.

Over the next several years the American Cancer Society will be conducting more research into certain lifestyles and exposures which could increase cancer mortality.

So know the risks.

Don't smoke.
Watch what you eat and drink.

Look for the warning signs of cancer.

And retire not only with a gold ticker.

But a healthy one, also.

Handicapped: Will they ever be accommodated?

We see them, yet we do not. They are the many students of Montclair State College who are afflicted with disabilities that make getting to and from classes especially difficult.

Whether they are noticed or not, there are many students at MSC who are disabled in one way or another and use wheelchairs. Although some of the buildings on campus are equipped with elevators many are not.

Consider buildings such as Russ Hall, College Hall and Harry E. Sprague Library. How do students confined to wheelchairs get into these buildings?

Just this year alone, several complaints have been made concerning the bathroom facilities for the handicapped in College Hall and in Partridge Hall. Yes, there are stalls designated for the handicapped, but the problem is that they're not wide enough for wheelchairs.

What would a handicapped person do if there was a fire in the Student Center Annex? How would they get out? They couldn't use the elevator because: 1.) The fire department doesn't allow elevator use in a fire emergency, and 2.) Most elevators automatically shut off in a fire emergency.

Such an emergency did occur over the summer. There was a fire alarm in the Student Center Annex where some handicapped people were. The elevators did shut off and those in wheelchairs were trapped.

Campus police were in a state of confusion as to how to handle the situation. Eventually, the handicapped students had to be carried out, and luckily there was no real fire. But what happens the next time there is a real fire?

It is a fact that this school has no real parking facilities designed to accommodate the handicapped students. Name one legitimate handicapped lot. Lot 13's handicapped spots are in fact not meant for the permanently disabled; they are meant for temporarily disabled students. For instance, when a student breaks his or her leg, they are permitted to park in the handicapped spots.

Most handicapped students are allowed to park in lot 14, but these spots, in fact, do not meet state requirements in terms of width.

However, there is a solution. What if we allowed parking in lot 12 near Finley Hall exclusively for handicapped people instead of for faculty members? This way the disabled students would be right in the middle of campus with easy access to both ends of the college.

It's time we began accommodating the people we sometimes chose not to see.

Is Quayle qualified to be a senator?

After the vice-presidential debate Wednesday, the question of whether Dan Quayle is qualified to be president of the United States in no longer an issue. The last legitimate doubt he's left us is whether he's qualified to be a U.S. senator.

The Republicans tried their best to put a happy face on Mr. Quayle's performance in the debate—they were quick to point out that he hadn't liberated Poland or placed Mexico north of Canada—but, let's face it folks, he was awful.

From the opening bell he looked like a scared rookie playing in a league two levels above his competence. It was almost painful to watch as he struggled with each question, searching his memory bank for the index card with the answer his handlers had provided him. Sometimes he found it, very often he didn't.

Questioned about his consistent, almost seamless, record of voting against programs that provide nutrition and health care for children of the poor, he said:

"What we have done for the poor is that we, in fact, the homeless bill, the McKinney Act, which is a major piece of legislation that deals with homeless. The Congress has cut the funding that the administration recommended. And the poor and poverty. The biggest thing that we have done for poverty in America is the tax-simplification act of 1986. Six million working poor families got off the payroll. Six million people are off the tax-paying payrolls because of that tax reform, and they're keeping the tax money there."

I suppose there's an answer in there somewhere, the problem is that it's the wrong answer. Trying to explain how he would use the military to help stop drug trafficking, he said:

"And there's another thing that will be more important than the premise of this question on a hypothetical of using troops. We'll use military assets. We're not going to, we will use military assets, but we need to focus on another part of the problem."

Like syntax, perhaps. Senator Quayle speaks English as though it were his second language with his first language being sign. George Bush is inarticulate; Dan Quayle is incoherent.

He might have teetered through the evening without suffering a mortal wound however had it not been for the pesky persistence of Tom Brokaw. Brit Hume had already twice asked Quayle what he would do if the presidency were suddenly thrust upon him and Quayle had been unable to come up with a satisfactory answer. He'd pray, he said, he'd "traveled a number of times," he knew Margaret Thatcher.

They were strange responses, actually, because the question is in the nature of a softball. All you have to do is think "continuity" and the steps a new president must take to reassure the nation, our allies and our enemies that a firm new Quayle's "continuity" answer was stuck behind his "contra aid" card; anyway, he couldn't get it out.

Still, it was remarkable that Brokaw thought to bring up the subject yet again and give Quayle one last swing at it. This time Quayle made the mistake of playing his Jack Kennedy card, something he does freely on the stump. "I have as much experience in the Congress as Jack Kennedy did when he sought the presidency," he said.

Bentsen was ready for that. It was almost poetry.

"Senator," he said, "I served with Jack Kennedy. I knew Jack Kennedy. Jack Kennedy was a friend of mine."

"Senator, you're no Jack Kennedy."

Pow! Right in the kisser. If the debate had been a prize-fight they wouldn't have had to stop it, they could have counted Quayle out right there.

Even allowing for the possibility that the response was scripted, it didn't sound scripted. In a debate in which it was transparently obvious that both candidates were giving canned responses again and again, it came across as a moment of genuine passion, a friend rising in outrage to the defense of a martyred comrade's memory.

In the context of the evening it reinforced the image of Quayle as a pip-squeak trying to play with the big guys but not succeeding.

None of which means that Dan Quayle will not be vice president of the United States. Vice-presidential debates are not crucial to campaigns. This one was more important than most, however, and the Republicans were big losers.

What it means, actually, is that for many of us the prospect of a Bush-Quayle victory has gone from alarming to terrifying.

Dawkins and Lautenberg:Student disillusioned by senate campaignTo the editor:

Let it be known, especially to Peter Dawkins and Frank Lautenberg, the two senatorial candidates in New Jersey, that I am not stupid and I refuse to be treated as such. Last night I took off of work, missed the playoffs, and lost valuable studying time to attend the debate in Whippany. I am sincerely disappointed. Not because of the predictable one liners and logical fallacies, that is just a fraction of it. I have become socialized into Ronald Reagan political theatrics.

What really has my blood boiling is that I recieved a telephone call from Vince Hemmer, Youth Director for Peter Dawkins, inviting me to the debate. The phone call was nice, but as I passed through the palacial doors of the Birchwood Manor, I noticed that my preppy sweater, baggy pants and penny loafers were not in vogue. Vince forgot to tell me to wear my elite red power tie and my dark blue suit. Vince also managed to forget to tell me to bring a warm jacket since I would have to stand outside holding a Pete Dawkins sign. I expected a little more of Vince. After all, the Republican Party sent him down all the way from the University of Pennsylvania. I guess Ivy League students figured that us New Jersey folks could figure it out for ourself.

There I was holding a Pete Dawkins sign, freezing, and missing the playoffs. Needless to say, I was highly offended. Not because I am above cheering on my candidate, but because I wanted to get to know my candidate. I would think that the 160 some college students there would also want to question their candidate. I guess they were happy being human billboards, puppets or just useful idiots.

Is holding signs and screaming the candidate's name frantically, like a bunch of obsessed concert groupies, the measure of political consciousness on New Jersey college campuses? I pray to God it's not. Last night I wanted to know where the money from Atlantic City casinos, the New Jersey Lottery, and the Meadowlands Race Track was going. It's evidently not going to higher education like it was supposed to. College students have one last chance and that is the bond issue referendum. Higher education is now in the hands of the students.

Our own S.G.A. is in a campaign to pass this referendum and using students fees to do so. Did the candidates urge the passage of this referendum last night? No! Were most of the supporters there last night college students? Yes! Were our Ivy League friends laughing? Probably!

I also wanted to know why the state raised parkway tolls when many of our students use the parkway to get to school, especially when housing is not sufficient. I wanted to know why our professors are over worked and our departments are understaffed. I did not want to learn the latest image making, in my case image breaking, chants.

It seems to me that the respective campaigns think that New Jersey college students are only good and important for just that. Evidently, our Ivy League friends are only good for holding the strings while all the puppets dance.

Now, let me tell you how appalled I was to see James Moore, S.G.A. President at Seton Hall, publicly endorse Peter Dawkins as an S.G.A. President. Without exaggerating, I honestly got chills, ask my roommate.

I am an S.G.A. legislator at M.S.C. and I would never endorse anyone as a legislator. If I was a Legislator at Seton Hall, I would impeach Mr. Moores' butt, then I would kick it.

Viewpoints/right*Bush gives Dukakis a lesson in law

The showstopper, in the opinion of many rhetorical technicians, was when Gov. Michael Dukakis asked Vice President George Bush whether he was prepared to make "criminal" everyone who had an abortion. It was clear to everyone who watched the debate that George Bush was trapped. But here exactly how is how it went:

Question (from the reporter to Bush): "If abortions were to become illegal again, do you think that the women who defy the law and have them anyway, as they did before it was OK'd by the Supreme Court, and the doctors who perform them, should go to jail?"

Bush: "I haven't sorted out the penalties, but I do know that I oppose abortion and I favor adoption."

Dukakis: "Well, I think what the vice president is saying is that he's prepared to brand a woman a criminal for making this decision. It's as simple as that."

In a way, Dukakis is right, it's as simple as that. Put in the form of a logical diagram, here is how it reads:

- 1) In a democracy, the legislature makes the laws.
- 2) In the United States, the legislature can make any law so long as it does not violate the Constitution.
- 3) If the Supreme Court rules that it does not violate the Constitution to forbid the practice of abortion, then,
- 4) Anyone who practices abortion violates the law and is subject to a criminal penalty.

Now to use the word "criminal" in the way Dukakis used it is to stir a witch's brew of murder, incest, treason and maybe regicide. Dukakis is saying to Bush, in effect: Is it your opinion that every woman who has had an abortion is to be likened to a murderer? Because if that is your opinion, George, I don't think that person is going to vote for you for president. People don't like it when you say they are murderers.

Poor Mr. Bush. Polemical opportunism of the kind Dukakis engaged in is hard to deal with, because it requires a little lecture in the composition of law.

Bush might have said: "Mike, as you know, anything that is forbidden by a legislature in a democracy, always assuming that the thing forbidden is not a constitutional right, is a crime. Double parking is a crime. Do I consider double-parkers criminal? No, I do not, though technically they are.

"Mike, apropos of your war on drugs, are you aware that 94 million people, according to the estimate of a responsible foundation, have experimented at one time or another with illegal drugs? Now, do I believe them to be criminals? Do I think of them as criminals? The answer is: I don't. But the law does. If the commission's report is to be believed, and I have not seen it challenged, then it is true that there are at least 94 million criminals loose in America, but that isn't going to upset you any more than it upsets me.

"Now, Mike, the criminal law acknowledges two divisions. If you double-park, you are a criminal. But since the penalty for double parking is less than one year in jail, you are guilty of a misdemeanor. If the penalty were more than one year in jail, the offense is called a felony. The question that is tormenting a great many people, including a great many women who have had abortions, is: Does the annihilation of a fetus constitute the taking of human life? As long as the majority of the American people do not believe this to be the case, there won't be any anti-abortion laws. But if the majority of the American people did believe this to be the case, there would be such a law.

"The question then would arise: To what extent would the majority make provisions for the minority who disagreed on the matter? An indulgence might be in two forms. Perhaps the Congress might pass the formal law, as for instance there is a formal law against bringing in a Cuban cigar, but if you want to bring one in, do so, and don't worry about it.

"Or perhaps the general understanding will be that women who honestly disagree will not be prosecuted, even as you fail to prosecute teachers in Massachusetts who decline to lead their classes in reciting the Pledge of Allegiance. Although, before Griswold, it was illegal in Connecticut to buy contraceptives, almost anyone who wanted to buy them could do so. There are 24 states that forbid the practice of sodomy, and there are 50 states in which sodomy is regularly practiced.

"So, Mike, try to understand how laws acquire effective sanction. When the people think the practice is truly obnoxious, truly hurtful, then they will impose effective penalties. That is a long way off, in the matter of abortion; almost certainly after you and I are both dead and buried. And when that time comes, Mike, may you rest in peace."

"Thank you, George."

"Goodnight, Mike."

'Real world' gap usefulTo the editor:*

I did not attend the Presidential Fall Symposium, however your article describing Dr. Redfield's keynote address intrigued me. How refreshing to hear a major university educator characterize the gap between college and the real world as "appropriate and useful!"

In his New York Times (Dec. 2, 1986) essay entitled "Schooling Is Not Education," Mortimer J. Adler (Chairman, Encyclopedia Britannica) bemoans how adults "are under the illusion that they had completed their education when they finished their schooling." Furthermore, "schools and colleges have not played their part" in instilling learning skills "because they are trying to do everything else." These statements support Dr. Redfield's belief in separating disciplines of academia regarding theory and actual practice. I agree the gap is appropriate. I also agree with MSC professors who espouse that high school graduates are better off working for a while before entering college.

As one who spent twelve years "in the real world" prior to enrolling here, I firmly believe there is no substitute for life experience. In certain respects college is hindering my education, yet I am very happy being here. I bring to the classroom a healthy cynicism which enables me to separate ideal, sanitized theories from reality. Thus, my experiences as a student are enriched, and the marks I achieve now that I may not have achieved earlier do not hurt, either.

College alone does not prepare one for the outside world. It is a stepping-stone towards a greater practical education. To learn the outside world is to live it and experience it. Combining that action with conventional academics will prepare one to decide how one ultimately wants to live in it.

Responsibility has a price

Several months ago, I ran in the SGA elections for the position of presidency. Several months ago, I was as naive to the responsibilities and pressures of such a position as one would be naive to say they understand all aspects of human nature. I never realized the implications that arise with such responsibilities within the SGA, within Class One organizations, or our impact to the student body.

What's he talking about, you say? Does he regret being elected president? The answer to the latter is a resounding no. What I am talking about is the understanding that with such responsibilities, personal judgment and values play a large role in the outcome of any circumstance. So do ethics and communication. This goes for anything you may strive for, be it in the classroom, at work, within the SGA or even within family matters.

The burden this title carries, as well as any other student position does, allows the possibility to be chastised, talked about, and even ridiculed. This is the unknowing reality that seeks ever so slowly on your efforts, in many cases, unnoticed. We'll call this reality "Regret".

Have you noticed, that the mayor of New York, Ed Koch, no longer asks, "How my doin'?" That's because he's basically afraid of the response he'll get. All because he stood up for what he believed was right. For his decisions, criticism will always come forth, sometime just for the sake ostracizing him. This makes you kind of understand why Mario Cuomo didn't want to run for the presidency.

I've just begun to realize the responsibilities I undertook when I took my oath of office. I'll make my friends and possibly, some enemies. That's reality. But in doing so, if I feel that I've used my best judgment, if I feel that what I'm doing is right, than I can live with it.

To all those in similar positions as myself, I thank you for your contributions and appreciate your efforts in trying to make MSC, and the world, a better place to be. I'm referring to you, Jo-El, Kerri, Kris, Pinky, Staci, Ingrid, Billy, etc., etc., etc.

Just a closing quote from Zen Buddhism, "In walking, just walk. In sitting, just sit. Above all, don't wobble." (Yun-men)

Hawkins company marks milestone in modern dance

By Luisa Carrizo
Assistant Arts Editor

The Erick Hawkins Dance Company captivated their audience during their Fri. and Sat. night performances at Memorial Auditorium.

The beautiful fluidity and aplomb of these dancers was evident minutes after the lights went up. It became all-encompassing by the final curtain call as the show divulged the innovation of movement.

The first piece of the production was entitled "Heyoka," the Sioux Indians' name for clowns. According to the program, these clowns were a vehicle to open people up "to the poetry of the action to come."

The dancers in this piece had a great sense of timing. As they gracefully moved through the air, they explored the aesthetic dimensions of time, space, and energy. At times, the dancers' use of unison left the audience awe struck at the physical feats that were visually engrossing.

An abstract design accompanied the artists onstage. It served as a visually provoking background; almost like another dancer suspended in time. The abstraction of the art piece came to life in the movement of the dancers.

"Plains Daybreak" was the title of the following dance work. It began with deep blue lighting against the backdrop and moons and stars hung from the rafters. There were no dancers on stage as the music began to echo throughout the auditorium; an indication that the dance ceremony takes place at the beginning of the world.

The dancers were adorned with unique and bizarre costumes that gave surrealistic images and occasionally emitted interesting sounds to appeal to the senses. In addition, the performers portrayed animals such as porcupines and hawks.

The choreography was composed of a distortion of movements deviating from the norm. These entrancing abstractions worked in syncopation against the rhythm. This piece was most impressive in that Hawkins revels in the delight of movement and concentrates on its subtleties and their simple pleasures.

The first thing you notice about the final piece, "Agathon" is the asymmetrical sculpture on stage that automatically puts one off balance. This dance was not intended to "interpret anything" according to the program, "but aims only to be wondrous just for its own sake."

And that it was. The dancers made asymmetrical portrayals of the design on stage and were costumed accordingly. In addition to this, the focus of the dancers towards the audience had a great impact. As the lighting changed and the music ebbed and flowed, the dance seemed to be suspended in time.

This performance by the Erick Hawkins Dance Company not only displayed dance, but also included other art forms such as the aforementioned art pieces as well as the live music that accompanied the dance troupe. The Hawkins Theatre Orchestra created an extra dimension to the show bringing forth a beautiful force to the dance.

At the beginning of Hawkins' career, he was a student at George Balanchine's School of American Ballet. He later joined the celebrated company of Martha Graham and was her first male dancer. He remained with her until 1951 when Hawkins opened his own school.

This brings us to today where Erick Hawkins continues to lead his company. His contributions to the dance world are priceless. As we observe his brilliant choreography and the graceful beauty of his dancers, we realize he is a true milestone in modern dance.

Brecker's second solo album; breaking new ground in jazz

By Dominic Pandiscia
Staff Writer

Don't Try This at Home is the second solo release by saxophonist Michael Brecker. Brecker, one of the foremost tenor players in the world today brings a strong supporting cast for this album. This includes Herbie Hancock, Jack DeJohnette, Peter Erskine, and Mike Stern. This fully digital recording is destined to be one of the biggest jazz releases of the year.

This album is released on the heels of Brecker's self titled first solo album from last year. A double Grammy nominee, it is obviously a difficult act to follow.

With Don't Try This at Home, Brecker surpasses the forte which he created on his first solo release.

The recordings on this album are largely based within the realm of mainstream jazz.

Brecker, however, seems to be taking the music in a new direction. Part of the differentiation between mainstream jazz and the sound which Brecker is creating is the introduction of a saxophone midi-controller. It allows Brecker to use sounds previously limited to keyboards.

The introduction of these new sounds played from a saxophone are both interesting and seem to add another dimension to the music. Depth and atmosphere have never been more present in Brecker's tone and composition.

Strong cuts on the album include "Chime This" which builds into a saxophone frenzy and is about as close to Coltrane as one can get. Another is "Suspense," which provides a fast swing beat as the basis for solos by various members of Brecker's band.

The title track is perhaps the strongest cut on the album. It provides the listener with the opportunity to sample the different sounds the midi-controller can create before the song breaks into a very fast mainstream beat where Brecker shows why he is perhaps the king of the tenor saxophone.

The compact disc version of this recording has an extra track only available on CD which is a bizarre culmination of atonal saxophone and various keyboard lines working in counterpoint.

Mark O'Conner (violinist) makes an appearance on the first cut of the album which begins as an Irish jig being played by O'Conner and Brecker and then breaks into a neo-mainstream groove whereby Brecker expands on the tonal possibilities of the midi-controller.

Produced by Don Grolnick, Don't Try This at Home is a very strong album which bears repeated listenings. Brecker, once again leaves no room for disappointment.

Nolan's Notes

By Jarrett Nolan

Hello and welcome to another edition of Nolan's Notes. Can you guess which Rolling Stone has the most extensive scrapbook of the band? I'll give you a hint: it ain't Mick. Actually, the honorary title of "Collector of Stones' Memorabilia" goes to bassist Bill Wyman, who's going to share the memories in an upcoming book. Wyman's been saving clippings and photos from around the world for years, so the commemorative volume (due out next year) should be hefty. 1989 also marks the 25th anniversary that the Rolling Stones washed up on American shores.

MINI-NOTES: Maybe you've noticed over the years that New Edition sometimes sounded like the Jackson 5 circa 1971. Well, according to group member, Ronald DeVoe, their past producers insisted that lead singer Ralph Tresvant sing in such a high key. But New Edition's new LP, "Heartbreak," was produced by Jimmy "Jam" Harris and Terry Lewis. They were responsible for Janet Jackson's "Control" breakthrough, and decided to scrap the Jackson sound and use Ralph's deeper, natural voice. New Edition thinks that Heartbreak is their best album in years. No argument here.

MINI-NOTES II: The joint concert between Luther Vandross and Anita Baker got an "A" rating from me while his highness Prince, received a "C." Vandross' album is finally out and Baker's should be out this week...Robin Givens plans to divorce Mike Tyson- or does she? (It has nothing to do with music, but music fans shouldn't miss marital gossip.) The answer to last week's trivia question: Stuart Sutcliffe preceded George Harrison as the Beatles' guitarist. This week's question: How did UB40 get their name? Think about it...Until next week...

Tube Talk

By Raymond Ecker
Editorial Page Editor

Hey! Yes that's right you're reading that guy again.

Probably the best show on television It's The Garry Shandling Show has an interesting show set to air Nov. 4 on Showtime and then later on Fox. This episode will feature Grant Schumaker (Scott Nemes) as he ponders the mysteries of adulthood-with a little help from his girlfriend, his parents and of course Garry. But that's not all. The show is also a musical ("huh?" you say.) yes a musical. There will also be an appearance by Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley.

Hart to Hart fans check this out. The husband and wife duo may come back on the air in the form of a T.V. movie. Both have agreed provided they receive a quality script. Co-star Stefanie Powers has submitted one, but so far has not been approved. Let's all bow our heads for a moment of silent prayer in hope that they receive a good script.

Editors note: the comment that precedes this message was indeed sarcastic and in no way was intended to be taken seriously, those that are actually praying may stop—unless of course you really want a good script for Hart to Hart then by all means continue praying. Thank you.

My favorite angel seems to be having something of a temper. Kate Jackson who is starring in the T.V. version of Baby Boom, walked off the set in a huff recently. Obviously NBC didn't care because they already started considering actress Kate Capshaw for the role.

Did anyone catch the Johnny Carson 25th Anniversary Special? If not, too bad because it was great show. The show featured David Letterman, Jay Leno and Garry Shandling. Not to harp on Garry's brilliance but he without a doubt made the funniest comment of the night.

When Johnny came up to him after doing a brief monologue and said "Out of everybody, you're my favorite," which he did for all the comics, Garry without missing a beat said, "thanks Merv." I like his style.

Lame Movie of the Week: The Keeper, Monday at 3 a.m. on Fox. Christopher Lee stars as a nutty custodian working in an asylum who is falsely accused of murder. Set those VCR's. See ya soon.

Domingues; Athlete of the Week

By Mary Carloimagno
Staff Writer

Cross-country runner Rosa Domingues has been a determining factor in the Indian victories this season.

She placed first in the 3.1 mile run with a time of 19.56. Because this race was crucial to the Indians' second place showing, Domingues has been named the Montclarion Athlete of the Week.

At the NJIAAW tournament last weekend, Domingues led her team to a second place victory over Glassboro State.

The cross-country team has not been favored in many meets this season. But with Domingues at it's head, things seem to be turning around for the young team.

Coming up for the lady Indians is the Jersey City Invitational, October 15, at 12 p.m. The Indians, led by Domingues, will hopefully be able to continue their success throughout the season.

When sarcasm seems to make some sense

By Kenny Peck

Hang Howell Jay Howell is a common criminal? Aren't we taking these playoff games a little bit too seriously?

Maybe not. When one looks at the Great Pine Tar Caper II, one may conclude that what transpired over the last few days reflects the fact that baseball really is America's favorite pastime.

Let's take a few sentences to explain. The judicial system of the United States, admittedly, sometimes leaves much to be desired. Just like baseball's judicial system. So when Howell was caught with pine tar on his glove, red-handed, he subsequently pleads not guilty by reason of stupidity. A speedy trial then ensues, and Howell is found guilty, as charged. He's then sentenced to three games out of the pen. We, as true Americans, applaud this punishment which so obviously fits such a heinous crime.

But since the baseball judicial system so strongly reflects the judicial system of America, it, like America's, has its inconsistencies. Like parole, for instance. Parole is when you are sentenced to "x" amount of years and serve only "t" years. Something like that.

So Howell takes advantage of this baseball version of parole, and he misses only one playoff game. If you're a Met fan, you're probably steamed. But surprised? You shouldn't be. It's been going on for a long while, and for many sports fans, it's a lesson to be learned.

Letters I recently learned that my mom is not the only person who reads this column when we received a few letters from readers. Which is good, even if some of the letters (alright, all of them) aren't particularly complimentary.

So let's try something new. If you have a comment, complaint or compliment about anything that appears in this column (this suggestion, for instance), drop it off in the personals box in the Montclarion office with the word "SPORTS" on top. Maybe we'll steal a page from Lupica and print some of them in the column. Hey, you can't argue with success.

At the Meadowlands The fabulous Two Pence should be running next week. Let's try again. Alysheba will be extremely tough Friday night—but his odds will reflect that. Any horse that Diane Nelson rides should be bet—the race after she rides. She makes some good horses look lousy.

Last week: Turbo Prop ran last night: we'll let you know next week what he did; Neither Havin' a Blast or Native Royalty ran.

Roger Rubinetti and the Montclair Indians rolled over Bloomfield 7-0 and Stevens 3-1. The Indians stand at 9-2-3 on the season and are fourth in the New Jersey Athletic Conference. On this play Rubinetti attempts a difficult "bicycle kick" to clear the ball versus Bloomfield.

Trivia Time-Out

Each week, The Montclarion publishes a list of sports questions and answers to test your knowledge of sports trivia. In addition, there is a sports stumper which will be answered in the following issue.

If you think you have the correct answer to the stumper, drop it off at The Montclarion office in Room 113 of the Student Center Annex. The names of those submitting the correct answer will be published in the next week's issue. Deadline for submissions is Monday at 3 p.m.

1. What is the nickname of the San Diego State basketball squad?
2. Who quarterbacked Alabama to a 34-7 victory over Nebraska in the 1967 Sugar Bowl?
3. What righthander was 1982's National League Fireman of the Year?
4. Who replaced Maury Wills at shortstop for the Los Angeles Dodgers?
5. What National League ballpark was once known as Weeghman Park?

Answers: 1. Aztecs; 2. Ken Stabler; 3. Bruce Sutter; 4. Bill Russell; 5. Wrigley Field.

Answer to last week's stumper:

Who preceded Pete Rozelle as commissioner of the NFL? Bert Bell.

Submitting the correct answer was:

Scott Langan, Mile Pavolony, Mike Spano.

This week's stumper:

What University of Cincinnati guard, later with the Pacers and Celtics, is the only man to play for NCAA, NBA and ABA champion teams?

What's What in MSC sports

Soccer

MSC took on a visiting Bloomfield College team that had yet to win a game, and the Indians came out on top by a score of 7-0. Freshman defender Kevin Pladl surprised everyone by playing just 40 minutes and finishing the game with three goals, the first collegiate goals of his career. Pladl also had a goal called back because of an offside call.

The Indians are currently in fourth place in the New Jersey Athletic Conference with a 3-1-1 conference mark. Yesterday, the Indians travelled to Stevens and came home with a 3-1 victory. Adam McNally, Gus Maramarco and Pladl scored for MSC. Upcoming games: Saturday, at Ramapo (1:00).

Field Hockey

Judy DeMarco scored the lone goals in both of the Indians conference wins, as the Indians beat Glassboro State and William Paterson by identical 1-0 scores. The Indians were able to split in two non-conference games, as MSC suffered a 2-1 overtime loss to Drew University and secured a 3-0 victory over Western Connecticut. Upcoming games: Tonight, FDU-Madison (H), 7:30; Saturday, at Kean (noon).

Women's Tennis

After MSC won its first match of the year, the Indians fell on hard times as they were able to win only one game match out of 18 this past week, falling to Rutgers-Newark and Glassboro State. The lone win was by Melissa Kollar, as she defeated Enza Caradona of Rutgers-Newark 6-3 and 6-2 in the third singles competition.

The Indians also finished in ninth position this past weekend in the NJIAW Championships with six and a half points, three ahead of tenth place Ramapo College. Upcoming matches: today, vs. Kean, (H), 3:00 p.m.

No, but some people would have liked to see Jay Howell of the Los Angeles Dodgers anywhere but on the field after his brush with the "law".

MSC clubs Kean, 20-7

By Bryan Morytko
Staff Writer

Senior running back Mike Codella and the rest of the Indians walked away with a big 20-7 win Saturday as they dominated conference rival Kean College.

The Cougars are defending New Jersey Athletic Conference (NJAC) champions. Saturday's defeat, however, gave them their second conference loss of the season and virtually knocked them out of contention in race for the NJAC title.

It was a sweet victory for the Indians, because not only do they move to 2-0 in the NJAC, but they were able to gain revenge for last year's tough loss to the Cougars which cost MSC the conference championship.

Codella, a senior transfer from Hofstra where he was a Division III second team All-American, started for an injured Scott Vega. Codella ran for 171 yards on 22 carries with two touchdowns.

Also turning in a good game for the Indians was junior Dan Walsh, who had 131 yards on 27 carries.

MSC opened the scoring in the second quarter following a Cougar punt which gave the Indians the ball on their own 41-yard line.

On the first play from scrimmage, Codella eluded several would-be tacklers and broke away for a 59-yard touchdown run. Senior placekicker Anthony Colasurdo added the extra point, and the Indians led 7-0.

But Kean wasn't ready to die yet, and with just 59 seconds showing on the clock in the first half, they started a drive from their own 27-yard line.

In just five plays, three of them passes to receiver John Nittolo, the Cougars scored. Quarterback Dave Johnson went to Nittolo for a 23-yard reception and a touchdown with just five ticks left on the clock. After the ensuing point after, the score was knotted at 7-7.

The second half belonged to the Indians, as they scored twice to put the game away while the defense held the Cougars scoreless. MSC went 70 yards on 13 plays, capping the drive off with a five-yard touchdown run for Codella.

Indian quarterback Leon Kislowski, who came in for Ed

Baffie in the third quarter, closed the scoring with a 23-yard pass to Amod Field for a touchdown to make it 20-7. Field now has four touchdowns in his five starts and is averaging 22.5 yards per reception.

The MSC defense turned in a spectacular effort as they held the Cougars to 41 yards rushing. Leading the defense was Paul Cioffi, who had 13 tackles and four sacks.

Also, the Indians blanketed tight end Kevin McGuirl so well that the All-American was held to only two receptions for 15 yards. McGuirl had come into the game with 21 catches for 378 yards.

The game was a big one for awards, as the Indians swept the NJAC awards for the week. Codella was named the NJAC Offensive Player of the Week while Cioffi received Defensive Player of the Week honors.

Codella was also named the Eastern Coast Athletic Conference Offensive Player of the Week for the southern division.

The Indian's next game comes this Saturday against William Paterson at 8:00 p.m., and marks MSC's homecoming.

X-Country runs well, upsets TSC at Holmdel

Bitter rivalry between local opponents has always been one of the most exciting situations in college sports. Last weekend, MSC archrival Trenton State was a distinct favorite to win the New Jersey Cross Country Championship.

Despite torrential rain and muddy running conditions, the lady Indians conquered all of nature's obstacles to run the NJ Championship with great inspiration.

On one of the toughest 3.1 mile courses in the state, Holmdel Park, Rosa Domingues never looked back as she sprinted into the finish to become the New Jersey champion with a time of 19:55.

Coach John Blanton was very pleased with her performance in such difficult conditions.

"Rosa put all things behind her and ran through the woods, talking to the trees all the way," said Blanton.

Jennifer Abrahamsen ran aggressively by coming in fourth with a final time of 20:23. Patricia Anderson brought in eighth position with a time of 20:47. While, Bernadette Wykpisz finished fourteenth with a time of 21:22.

Without a doubt, the depth of the Indian team has been one of the most significant features of this successful season. MSC finished with a total of 53 points while the Lions finished with 38 points.

"We showed the character and determination that I expect from a team with such depth and talent," said Assistant Coach Noelle Collura.

Trenton State entered the race as favorites, however MSC had four girls finish in the top fifteen while the Lions only managed to place three.

Not only did the lady Indians overcome the harsh weather conditions, but also upset favored Trenton State, which few had predicted.

William Paterson aims to ruin MSC Homecoming

By Kenny Peck

The William Paterson Pioneers will attempt to spoil MSC's Homecoming Week when they invade Sprague Field Saturday to take on the Indians.

Last year, MSC beat the Pioneers 12-0 as Scott Vega led the Indians to a win that marred William Paterson's Homecoming.

The Pioneers are looking for their third win in a row, as they come off consecutive victories against Kean and Wesley. William Paterson got off to a rocky start early this season, however, as they lost their first three games of the year.

MSC has never lost to William Paterson. The closest the Pioneers ever came to a win over the Indians was in 1979, when the two teams fought to a 7-7 tie. The Indians own a 16-0-1 record in the series.

First-year head coach Tom DeMaio will call on freshman quarterback Russ Christiana to lead the offense. Christiana, starting for the injured Brian Leary, was named Rookie of the Week for both the New Jersey Athletic Conference and the Eastern College Athletic Conference.

Juniors Tim Minor and Pat Harmon and sophomore Pat Santora are the Pioneer running backs, while senior Rene Thompson and freshman Tom Houle are the split ends.

The William Paterson offensive line is led by right tackle Sean Connolly. Connolly is one of the Pioneer co-captains this season and one of the mainstays up front. Other Pioneer linemen to watch include junior Travis Birkman and senior Dave Paterson. Lou Mancuso is the tight end.

Defensively, William Paterson is young and inexperienced. The only returning starters are defensive tackle John Bianchi and junior outside linebacker John Rivera.

Joining Bianchi on the defensive line are sophomore Eric Betcher and junior Ted Pastor at the defensive end positions and junior Steve Speidel at defensive tackle.

Senior Mike Murphy is the other Pioneer outside linebacker, while sophomore Brian Culligan is the middle line-backer.

The William Paterson secondary is probably their weakest spot defensively. Freshman Lee Linton has been a pleasant surprise for the Pioneer coaching staff, however, as he was cited by the NJAC two weeks ago for an outstanding game against Kean.

Joining Linton in the secondary are sophomores Tom Kochis and Eddie Rendzio and junior Mark Curshaw.

Linton and Dave Lincoln handle the punting and kicking, respectively.

Key Matchups:

MSC split end Amod Field vs. WPC secondary-Field has the speed to get behind a secondary, and the William Paterson secondary will have their hands full with him.

MSC DE Paul Cioffi vs. LT Dave Paterson-Cioffi is having an excellent season thus far and has been able to disrupt opposing team's offenses.
